National Occupational Classification number: find more info at www.workingincanada.gc.ca	Identifying number used by the Ontario College of Trades and Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities	The Ontario College of Trades is an independent body that regulates trades and apprenticeship in Ontario. The Ontario College of Trades Apprenticeship Act (2009) is in effect in as of April 8 2013. This is the law which defines the number of hours of apprenticeship, ratios, compulsory trades, etc., for tradespeople in Ontario.	Compulsory trades require that a worker in this trade be a certified journeyperson or a registered apprentice. About 1/4 of construction trades are compulsory.	Red Seal trades have certification that is recognized in every province of Canada	# of hours of on-the-job and in-class training an apprentice must complete to write the Certificate of Qualification exam (some divided into levels or years)	# of hours of on-the-job experience a tradesperson must prove in order to challenge the Certificate of Qualification exam	# of journeypersons required for each apprentice on a job site. The second ratio is the number of journeypersons required to hire an additional apprentice.	Ontario government standard of academic achievement required to register as an apprentice	% of journeyperson's wage an apprentice receives, increasing with apprentice's experience	Useful websites/organizations to contact to get started researching your trade and/or find an employer that can take on apprentices. Check resources given for related trades as well as for your trade of interest.
